PROSPECTUS

OF THE RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE

In the third week of June, 1852, will be commenced, in the city of Washington, a Weekly Campaign Newspaper, of large size, under the above title.

It will be devoted to the maintenance of genuine republican principles as avowed and practised by the great WHIG PARTY of the United States; to the preservation of the NATIONAL Union, and of the Rights of the States and the RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE under that Union; and in an especial manner to the election of GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT to the Presidency of this Republic.

It will be the agreeable duty of the editor to dwell and to descant upon the merits of a man around whose brow are entwined the laurels gathered on many a victorious field. During the long period of forty years his talents, his valor, and his humanity have nobly illustrated his country's honor; and the patriotic masses, the toiling millions of our widely-extended country, will, on the seventh of November next, arise in their power and majesty to bestow their suffrages upon their honored fellow-citizen-the hero, the patriot, and sage-and to proclaim THE GRATITUDE OF A REPUBLIC!

TERMS:

THE RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE will be published once a week-from the third week of June until the third week of November-at one dollar.

Postmasters and others acting as voluntary agents, who may send three or more names, are authorized to reserve twenty-five per cent. for their trouble, or the advantage of this deduction may be shared by all the members of a club; and for each ten subscribers, on these terms, an eleventh

The New York Demonstration for Mr.

Our respected cotemporary of the Union-who this morning appears on the front seat with the the Fillmore demonstration in New York, which, he says, was more imposing, in respect to numbers and enthusiasm, than was anticipated; and he thinks the fact has been made clear by it that and the manly pride and courtesy of a well-bred "the Southern Whigs, in preferring Mr. Fillmore to General Scott, by no means stand alone!"

It is very singular that a hearty demonstration was not anticipated in favor of a candidate whose good qualities no one disputes, and who, exercise it as he may, it is known by all, will have the whole patronage of the government in his hands for nearly a year to come! Mr. Fillmore may to-night. The well-known public spirit and talnot think of this, and he has no doubt many friends who would scorn its influence; yet it has who are residents of this city. It is well known its influence. But standing in the position he that he was one of the first who introduced these does, and possessing the respect and good will of anniversaries of the "return of flowers," and authorities to protect them by law from the evils all the Whigs of the country-even of the most that for many years he has received the patronnothing of the attractions of such men as Gentry, ting the beauties and pleasures of this "time-&c .- it ought surely to be no wonder that a very honored" festival clever "demonstration" should be made.

One highly significant fact, however, should still be noted. It is, that a Fillmore demonstration is gratifying to the Union and all others of the knowing ones in the Democratic party! As they wish to be beaten, they will of course rejoice in our elevating the man most likely to do it !

"Recreant" Whigs!

The Republic of this morning quotes from the Albany Evening Journal some remarks in which is expressed the willingness of the friends of General Scott in New York to carry out the will of the Whig National Convention-or, in other visit; but in that time has aroused a spirit of words, to support the nominee of that Convention; reform here which it would take months for and the Republic exultingly asks, how it can be others to accomplish. said that New York will poll a majority of seventy thousand against Mr. Fillmore? "Where," his audiences increasing, if possible, in numbers, it asks, "are the seventy thousand RECREANTS and certainly in intensity of interest manifested to come from?"

The Republic has here given a name to all persons who will not abide by the decision of the had the time permitted. Whig National Convention: they are RECREANTS! We have no objections to this. We believe, with and man. As an orator his power of chaining an audience, for any length of time, and in any length of time, and in any length of time and in any length of time. in preliminary caucuses constitutes a pledge to support the nominee." This is endorsed by Mr. Fill- voice and language. His descriptive powers are more's chief organ (the Republic) and is on the of the most perfectly graphic character, with record. We shall, therefore, soon know who among the professed Whigs of our country are RECREANTS in the opinion of their own special

The Petersburg South Side Democrat says : "No man who surveys with an intelligent eye the present political condition of the country. can pretend to any very great confidence in the success of the Democratic party in the next Presidential election."

The Democrat is not much given to despondency, and we have no doubt it surveyed matters of St. Peter's yesterday. When the Pope was with an intelligent eye before it came to this about to pronounce the benediction, a French officer conclusion. Something will depend upon the colts brought into the field; but we suppose the Democrat regarded Scott as the Whig champion ficer struck back with his sword, cutting Mr. J. of course. So do we.

House of Representatives .- The House met at 8 o'clock this morning. No legislative business was transacted, there being but about two dozen members in attendance. After prayer by the Chaplain, and reading of the journal by the Clerk, an adjournment took place until Monday, in order, meantime, that the Hall may be refitted and cleaned for summer use.

Edwin Forrest.

A letter from Mr. Marshall, the accomplished essee of the National Theatre, announces that Mr. Forrest will reach Washington to-morrow to prepare for his engagement at that establishment, which begins on Monday evening next. Great interest has been manifested for months to know when this eminent actor would appear in Washington; and he has yielded to the wishes of our citizens and the Representatives in Congress, and postponed his engagements elsewhere in order to gratify his friends at the national metropolis. It is not too much to say of Mr. Forrest that he is the only great tragedian now living. Those who detract from his high talents in his profession, and from the bold, fervent, and original style that stamps all his achievements, forget that he has passed through every ordeal of trial and of criticism. While yet a boy, Edmund Kean saw the master intellect of Forrest; and it is a remarkable fact that the Englishman took the earliest occasion to predict the career which was afterwards brilliantly opened to the American. Mr. Forrest played for sixty nights in London, at the Drury Lane Theatre, to houses crowded with the intellect and fashion of the realm. Those who doubt his genius, howhave only to see Mr. Forrest in Richelieu, in Lear, in Othello, in Macbeth, and in Richard. He treads no other man's path. His school is exclusively his own. The cynic is disarmed by the music of his voice, the power of his eloquence, and the startling novelty with which he beautifies his readings, and developes the sense of the author. He dives into the recesses of Shakspeare as into a sea reins and whip in his hands-is highly pleased with of thought, and brings up to the gaze of men tion and even the prohibition of law. Editors of the American Telegraph : GENTLEMEN: I am directed by the Temperano Convention to send to you for publication the accompanying letter, addressed to a committee of that body appointed under one of the resolutions heretofore published in your columns.

President of Convention. MONDAY MORNING, May 10, 1852.

Washington, April 12, 1852. GENTLEMEN: I have received your communication of the 30th ult., and read it with deep in new era on the subject of temperance in the city of Washington. Though prevented by the pressure of other engagements from a personal at tendance on their deliberations, I have watched their proceedings with much solicitude, and cannot but hope that they will be followed by results in which thousands will have occasion to rejoice

I have no pulpit at present, and cannot therefore comply with your request, so far as "dis in the pulpit" are concerned. In respect to "such suggestions as will aid the convention in their great work," I am not certain that I can offer anything new or very important. I wish you to understand, however, that I will most cordially co-operate with you in promoting the objects of the convention in all wise and practicable methods.

The following points are settled, in my judgment 1. The sale of intoxicating liquors cannot be regulated. Every law, in every community, in-

2. The attempt to regulate the sale has increased the evils of it in many ways. It has given the protection of law to a most iniquitous ousiness: it has created a false standard of action in the community, as many suppose that what wrong; it has led respectable members of society to engage in the traffic who would fly from it as from piracy and murder if it were deprived of the respect ability which legislation has conferred upon it; and, finally, it has blinded the minds of the majority of this community to the meanness, the selfishness, the cruelty, the crime, and the sin of this traffic.

3. Many of the best interests of society would be perilled by permitting all indiscriminately to engage in the traffic without any restriction. There are so many unprincipled men in every community—so many who are willing to gratify their avarice, or their indolence, or their own appetites at the expense of the virtue and happiness of others—that we cannot consent to throw open this perpicious t-affic to all. I need protection from such men for myself and my children Society would soon be resolved into its original elements, and universal anarchy prevail, if bad men were free to act out their evil passions unrestrained by the civil law. This is true as a general principle, and lies at the foundation of all civil government. It is on this account that my conviction is clear and settled, that

4. The protection against the evils of intemperance must come from an absolute prohibition of he traffic in intoxicating drinks:

I have seen but two objections to a prohibitory law which seemed worthy of an answer: The first is, that such a law is a sumptuary law; that it prescribes what and how and when a man may drink, and is therefore most unjust and oppressive, if not absurd and ridiculous. Now, it is certainly possible for the habits of individuals to become such as to need the regulaprotect itself in such circumstances, may doubt ess enact wise laws. But this is not the case before us. The prohibitory law which the friends of temperance desire to see enacted respects the traffic in intoxicating drinks-it has nothing whatever to do with their use. It has no precepts or penalties for the consumer. He may drink without censure from the law, though he will not escape the influence of moral suasion, or cease to be an object of solicitude and sorrow with all temperance men. But the vender must not escape. This law fixes its grasp upon him, and denounces its penalty against him for "putting his bottle to his neighbor's mouth." This objection, therefore, is not founded on fact, and, of course, falls to the ground. The second objection is the following: This appeal of the virtuous members of society to the civil of the traffic in intoxicating drinks is an acknowledgment of the weakness of the church, a cona virtual surrender of this divinely-appointed agency into the hands of the civil government.

This objection is quite spurious, and may prevent some good men from "bidding God speed to this important enterprise. But never did at the very foundation of all civil government, and, if permitted to prevail, would soon put in informed in vain of their omissions, we will do so. the ascendant the disorganizers of our world If the charge of surrender of the church to the They are arresting men at Alexandria for civil government can be made good against temperance men, it can be equally sustained against all men who believe in civil government at all. But does the man who relies upon the civil law to protect his house from robbery, or his person violence, proclaim the weakness of the church? Must be, to be a consistent Christian. entrench himself within that sacred enclosure, and declare that all has been done that he is anthorized to do to protect himself and the community from robbery and assassination? Does not the gospel in which he trusts proclaim that civil government is of divine origin, that it is ordained for the punishment of evil-doers, and that it "beareth not the sword in vain?" And while he will rely upon the preaching of the gospel, or moral suasion, to restrain men from robbery and murder, as well as other sins, will he deem repudiation of his principles, or an acknowledgment of the weakness of the church, if he unites with others in sustaining a civil government that may protect him from robbers and murderers who fail to be persuaded to goodness by the gospel? There can be but one answer to these questions among all right-minded men.

It is on the same principles that laws may be enacted against the traffic in intoxicating drinks. That the time may soon come when our families shall have the same protection against this most pernicious traffic that they now have against robbery and assassination, is the carnest prayer of your friend and brother in the cause of tem-MASON NOBLE perance. MESSRS. EDITORS: Your correspondent, (J. D. Hoover,) in refuting an extract from the Philadelphia Ponnsylvanian, which appeared in the Telegraph of the 10th instant, alludes to a letter addressed to the independent Democratic candidate for the Mayoralky of this city, which he says "was signed by upwards of seventy of our most respectable citizens, without distinction of party; indeed, sixty of whom were among our most zealous and distinguished Whigs." Will Mr. Hoover give us the names of those sixty distinguished Whigs! Let us know who they are. Let us have the correspondence; there are good men and true enough in the Whig ranks to choose from, without having recourse to the Democratic ranks for a candidate for the Mayoralty, even should the present worthy incumbent be set aside.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Having perused a letter which appeared in the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian several days since, from a Washington correspondent, in which I was placed in the same category with several other gentlemen named as Democratic candidates for offices in this city, I feel that it is proper that I should address you this communication, with the view of placing myself and others right before this community. At the time that I consented to become a candidate in the Third Ward for the Board of Aldermen, I distinctly avowed my unwillingness to enter the canvass, if it were necessary to base my chance of success upon political grounds, as I then (as now) thought it improper to draw party lines in our municipal elections, as we are so situated as to render it of little importance which of the two parties triumph here. I must confess in all candor that I am guilty of the enormous offence of being a Democrat; which, with the patriotic athlete of Federalism in Washington, is regarded as a "causs belli;" and, therefore, I suppose that I must be crushed! I am no longer a candidate; I never was "the Democratic candidate;" and, to my knowledge, there is not a "Democratic candidate;" and, to my knowledge, there is not a "Democratic candidate;" and, to my knowledge, there have not a "Democratic candidate;" in this city for either Mayor or the Council. I aver this to be a fact upon my own responsibility. At the election in June, I in common with other Democratic validate in the council accommon with other Democratic validate in the council accommon with other Democratic candidate. fact upon my own responsibility. Whatever might have been my personal wishes on the subject, it would have been difficult for me to resist the friendly call you have made upon me; but, agreeing as I do entirely with all that you have said as to the inexpediency of bringing national politics into our city elections, I most cheerfully place my name at your disposal as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the ensure election. ring election.

THE MAYORALTY. AS the friends of other candidates for this office are already active in their behalf, I desire to present the name of the present incumbent, WALTER LENOX, esq., for re-election. It is to be expected that personal preference will, to some extent, govern the choice of many, but efore the community generally, honest and discerning it s decision, is not the proper question, "What is the publi-therest?" It must be admitted by every reflecting citizer its decision, is not the proper question, "What is the public interest?" It must be admitted by every reflecting citizen that sudden and uncalled for change is not only unjust to the officer, but to the public interest. It takes away the personal motive and ambition which induce the faithful performance of duty, and loses to the public the benefit of official experience. If the present incumbent has discharged the duties of the office with ability and zeal, and can hereafter bring to it the advantage of practical experience, I trust that the people of Washington will not use the elective franchise to their own injury and the injustice of a public officer.

A DISTURBANCE AT THE NAVY YARD.

A DISTURBANCE AT THE NAVY YARD.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Your paper claiming to be independent, and its columns open to all, please allow me the use of them to make public a tyrannous outrage attempted on an honest and respectable class of our citizens. On yesterday it was rumored about the Navy Yard that an order had been issued by the Commandant that as the men passed from the Yard at evening bell-ring, their dinner-baskets were to be searched by the watchmen. The men justly demurred at this new and unwarrantable usurpation of authority, and the Commandant was respectfully asked if the rumor was correct, as they considered it an uncalled-for imputation on their honesty. They were informed that "honest men would not object to having their baskets searched," &c. At bell-ring, as the men were passing from the Yard, an attempt was made to enforce the order; but the men, with commendable forbearance, firmly objected to any such outrage, but quietly gave in their names as "disobedient to orders," preferring to leave the Yard and seek for work elsewhere, than to be thus degraded in the face of the community. Now, this is a pretty state of affairs: a class of industrious and honest citizens are, without cause, to be subjected to a humiliating and degrading order, merely to satisfy the autocratic will of one man! Like men who know their rights, and, knowing, dare maintain them, they refused to suffer the degradation, and manfully spurned the insult. The question is, Will the men employed in the Yard silently suffer the feelings of their companions and follow-witnen to be trampled on—their rights as freemen outraged? Or will they permit them to be made the cringing slaves that basely lick the hand that strikes? Let the men meet and appoint a committee to wait on the Secretary of the Navy, and represent their case, and ask—if they remain in the Yard—if they are to be subject to this order?

Let it not be understood that the men rebel against the authority of the officers of the Yard, or that they appeal from the just orders of the men; but so unreasonable and unjust an order cannot find a ready compliance with such men as our Navy Yard contains.

The above was written on Tuesday, and would have appeared in that day's paper; but the writer learning that the order had been rescinded, thought it would, if then published, only be an injury to those whose cause he had expoused, retained it; but learning since that the trouble is "not dead, but sleepeth," and that some men of standing and influence have attempted not only to defend the order and screen the Commandant, but in an ungenerous manner to throw the whole discredit upon certain of the workmen, it is now deemed highly proper that this statement and appeal should appear.

It has been stated in one of the Baltimore papers that the order was intended for the colored hands only. This is a subterfue; for the gentleman who called on the Commandant was told that the order had been in existence for forty years, and it should be carried out, and that he (the Commandant) had no objection to his own basket being searched, &c. Does that look like intending it for the colored men? No! It is an after thought. The citizens of the Sixth Ward, who are the mechanics of the Navy Yard, need no eulogy from any one, nor do they ask it; but it is a well-known fact, that this is the most quiet and orderly Ward in the city; and though our police are as efficient as that of any other portion of the city, yet they can find but little to do in their business. Honesty is one of the leading characteristics of this people, and the mechanics cannot be excelled in this by a similar community elsewhere. There is much more that might be said on this unfortunate circumstance, but it is reserved against the day of need. The citizens of this vicinity, who feel themselves outraged, will meet and take some firm and proper steps in this matter, and in their undertaking they have the warmest sympathies and best wishes of one who is NOT A MECHANIC.

MARRIED.

On the 12th instant, by the Rev. J. W. Haddes, Mr. ED-WARD SUIT, jr., and Miss MARGARET ANN BROWN, of Bladensburg, Prince George county, Virginia.

On the morning of Tuesday, the 11th instant, in the seventy-seventh year of her age, Mrs. REBECCA RUSS, a native of England, but for fliy-eight years a resident of the United States, and for the greater part of that time a resident of this city.

In this city, on the 11th instant, after a long illness, Mrs. MARY ANN REDDY, aged forty-three years, a native of Philadelphia, but for some time a resident of this city.

At his lodgings in this city, on the 11th instant, CHARLES M. INGERSOLL, for about sixteen years past a clerk in the Treasury Department. Mr. Ingersoll was a native of Maine, and was in the 66th year of his age. He was a classmate at Dartmouth College of the late Judge Woodbury, and afterwards read law with other distinguished men at Litchfield Academy. Possessing a mind of singular acuteness, he might have hoped to attain distinction in his profession, but early abandoned it for that of a teacher. He was the author of an English grammar, which at one time was much in use. He was a man of kind heart and the most generous impulses.
